Methodology

- Questionnaires for teachers, parents, students, trainers, social workers
- Study Visits
- Define focus group and make video interviews
- Design and write the toolkit
- Test the toolkit with parents, students, teachers

Expected Results

- The first result will be to having students with migrant background more involved in the education process by made them have the power to influence the decision about their education.
- The second result will make busy migrant parents, especially those coming from disadvantaged contexts and countries, having a more proactive attitude so that can help the education performance of their children.
- The last and result to be achieved, which is also the one who mostly answer to the organizations' needs, is to have provided teachers (in schools) and trainers/youth workers (in training and youth centers) with a more mixed teaching/training approach to students with migrant background.

The toolkit

- ➔ 35 pages dealing and proposing solutions for various issues concerning the school dropout of migrant students
